I'm pretty sure filing with SOS is not an issue. They really only look to see that all the blanks are filled in on the online form. Although the statute prohibits replacing a temporary rule with an identical temporary rule, I don't think SOS looks at that. I think regardless of whether we call it adopting a new, replacement temporary rule, or an amendment to a temporary rule, the filing with SOS will look exactly the same. We file through an online form and it does not have any way to enter a modification of a temporary rule. The online system just asks if you are adopting a permanent rule or a temporary rule, and then offers you the blanks to fill in appropriate to the rulemaking.

I have not found any particular guidance on this issue (and even Larry K does not recall encountering it). I don't read anything in the statute authorizing the adoption of temporary rules that would prevent you from amending a temporary rule (by adopting a new temporary rule that amends the prior temporary rule). Meyer's approach would also be fine, but I do think (as I just explained in an email to Jill) that you need to provide additional analysis and the EQC must find that not adopting this new temporary rule would seriously prejudice the public interest or the interests of affected persons. In other words, you need to explain the serious prejudice caused by the current temporary rule's reference to DEQ Method 5 instead of EPA Method 5.

Meyer knows more about filing rules with the SOS office than I do—thinking about which approach will cause the least confusion when it is filed with the SOS might be the best basis for making a decision on this. Or at least another important consideration.

Let me know if you want me to try seek more input from my colleagues outside of NRS on this issue.

I believe, and DOJ can correct me, that we are adopting the rules anew. I am not aware of any process that let's us "correct" a temporary rule. My approach was that we were adopting a new temporary rule that would displace the prior temporary rule, although the new rule's expiration period would run from the previous adoption date.

Comment on the rule change: I don't think we need the qualifier "(filterable PM only)" do we? That is EPA Method 5. I would propose deleting that.

Staff report: I made one edit consistent with my comment above. Also, I am confused as to what form the staff report takes. Hopefully Meyer can help with this. The staff report, other than the first two pages, reads as though we are asking EQC to adopt these rule anew. Since that is not the case, it seems strange to just use the old staff report. Perhaps the staff report should just be the first two pages explaining the correction and the old staff report is an attachment? There are many places throughout (I only noted two in the document) where the language is not consistent with a rule that has already been adopted.

Thanks, Leah

Everyone,
I just changed the staff report on SharePoint and sent a version to Paul to review. I just added George's explanation to the first part of the staff report. Please let me know when you are done so Stephanie can send it to the commissioners.
Thanks,
Jill

Looks like we will have three (no word from Morgan yet).

Let me know how you'd like to proceed. I am in a meeting until 11:30 and then also most of the afternoon.

Commissioners,

I have been informed that DEQ may need to propose a change to the temporary rules for art glass manufacturers (changing the methodology used to determine baghouse efficiency, effectively getting more accurate results of the testing….but, as always, I would defer in all things technical to our technical staff!).

Staff would like to propose these amendments at a special meeting, tentatively next Thursday, May 5. Are either of you available for approximately one hour, at any time between 8:30 and 4:30, that day? Vice-chair Armstrong and Commissioner Johnson can both be available, and Chair O'Keeffe cannot, so we need at least one more commissioners to have quorum for any decision.

The meeting will be at DEQ headquarters with some – if not all – of the commissioners participating by phone.

Thanks,
Stephanie
