As I understand it EQC will adopt temporary air toxics rules today. The law requires us to provide notice to affected parties after adopting temporary rules. I normally send out a GovDelivery notice, and request facebook and twitter postings, and a news release. In this case, how much of that am I expected to do and how much is already being done by other people?

If I am going to do a GovDelivery notice, someone should tell me which topics to send to in addition to rulemaking, and who wants to review the notice before I send it.

Thanks.
