Joe,

Thanks for kicking off this message. I couldn't agree more with everything that has been said. This has been an extremely time-intensive, difficult, technical and time-sensitive rule making. Everyone really put forth great effort to get this accomplished and yesterday's presentation was top-notch. Every one of you on this email gave time and expertise to this effort and everyone's input was critical to the outcome. And, Joe, thanks to you for your incredible project management through this process. This was a true example of a project that required a project manager to ensure that we kept up with the ever-changing issues, technical hurdles and that we stayed on a very tight schedule. Thank you for your great work.

Nice job, team!!!

Leah

I think it was definitely a positive outcome, and it feels great to have it somewhat settled (at least for a while). Joe, your write-up of the rule and summary documentation were excellent. Good work, everybody!

Hi All,

Hooray! I want to take this opportunity to say, “Well done!” to our presenters at yesterday’s EQC meeting, and to the whole team for pulling together on the art glass rule. It was a great experience to work with you all on this challenging and meaningful project that we took on. As far as I can tell, this is what working at an environmental agency is all about- taking an environmental/human health problem, and working through the messy process of doing something about it.

Anyway, I’ve been really impressed with the skill and dedication brought to this team, and I’m glad to have been a part of it. I hope to have more chances to work with y’all in the future.

-Joe
