I would suggest considering moving it up one week or two weeks (along with consultation with commission on whether they are okay with three weeks, say, versus four or five). I would suggest that you and Jaclyn and Sue view the calendar in light of the other moving parts of CAO (advisory committee, public policy forums, rule team meetings, etc) to see what works best. I think a tad earlier is better, partly for Tier 1 sources, and partly to get past this phase for our staff that are working on multiple parts of CAO, but, that comes with the caveat that it should fit into the CAP regulatory reform calendar as well as possible - whatever seems best for those presenting this rule making to the Commission in light of all other work. Hope that makes sense. If you all want to discuss further to determine the best time, please feel free to set up a meeting! I am happy to chat further.

Subject: FW: scheduling EQC meeting for consideration of art glass permanent rules

Hi Leah,

I believe the current plan is to have the art glass permanent rule EQC meeting on Monday, October 3rd - see below.

That gives us 1 month to process comments and then 5 weeks for EQC to read our proposal. (DEQ's rulemaking schedule suggests giving the EQC 5 weeks to read the proposal. But, I just found out from Emil that sometimes the EQC is OK with as little as 1 week of notice.)

Do you feel we should try to move that up?

Both Stephanie and Greg are out until next week, so I can't confirm dates or request a change until then.

Hi Stephanie,

Monday the 3rd would be good for me, and looks good on some of my teammates' calendars too.

Thanks, Joe.

Since we have a regular meeting November 2 and 3, I would aim for early October (same opinion as Leah), so we have some downtime between the two meetings. Since we're so far out, we can likely just call a date and see how that works. Do you have strong opinions/work scheduling needs that would make Monday, October 3, a poor choice (and I'm thinking an after-lunch start, perhaps 2 p.m. for this one-item meeting)?

Thanks!

- Stephanie

Hi Stephanie,

Could you help get a date set for the EQC to consider the art glass permanent rules? Having a date set will help me plan our work.

Leah's thoughts about preferred dates are below.

Thank you for your help,

Thank you.

Next step would be to contact Stephanie Caldera about setting up a special meeting. I would cc Greg Aldrich on that email as well. A quick look at a calendar suggests that you might be looking at sometime between Sept. 26 and Oct. 14 for this special meeting. I think the ideal time would be the first week of October, but, Stephanie will know if there are other barriers to timing like Commissioners and Director's calendar.

Subject: timeline for processing public comments for art glass rulemaking

Hi Leah,

In followup to your question about the timeline:

Public comment for the art glass rulemaking closes on Friday, July 29th at 5pm.

Do you have advice about how to get the EQC meeting scheduled? You've mentioned that it might be in September rather than October. (Temporary rule expires October 18th). The deadline to process the comments and get the package to Emil will depend on when the EQC meeting is taking place.

Joe - have you been searching E-Bay? :) Thank you for providing this.

Folks - I added George as I thought he might want to review this too.

George and Jill and Jaclyn - let's keep this "in front" of us when DEQ reviews comments and determines what if any changes we make to the temporary rules in proposing them permanently to the Commission.

Joe - can you remind all of us our timeline for working on response to comments and the rule language? Basically, can you tell us what date public comment closes and what date our final package needs to go to Emil for review?

Thanks! Leah
