Summary

Air toxics emissions from certain types of industrial businesses like colored art glass manufacturers are not fully regulated under federal requirements. Based on monitoring DEQ undertook last October, and more recently, DEQ has concluded that uncontrolled furnaces used in colored art glass manufacturing may emit potentially unsafe levels of certain metals, including arsenic, cadmium, hexavalent chromium and nickel. DEQ proposes the Environmental Quality Commission approve new proposed rules to protect the public health and the environment by ensuring the air emissions from colored art glass manufacturers do not cause unsafe levels of metals emissions in the air nearby.

EQC adopted temporary rules on April 21, 2016 and this proposed rulemaking will make those rules permanent.

Stakeholder Involvement

DEQ has appointed a fiscal advisory committee to review the fiscal and economic impact related to the proposed rules. The next committee meeting will take place:

- 9 a.m., Thursday, May 27, 2016
- DEQ Headquarters, 10th Floor, Room EQC-A, 811 SW Sixth Avenue, Portland, OR 97204

The public may attend, but is not entitled to participate in, advisory committee meetings. Later in this rulemaking proceeding DEQ will invite public comments on and will hold a public hearing about the proposed rules. At that time any member of the public may submit comments and participate in the public hearing.
