Conversation Between	Date	Contents
Sarah Kingery:DEQ & Paul Fairbairn:Stantec	06/04/2024	I had not received a response to my email dated 5/20/2024 so I called Paul at his office (425-289-7343). Paul said that they had provided all the data I was asking for in previous reports. I suggested he point those out to me specifically to save time. He said that he would do that and also said that he likes to cc Pat Vaughn (sp?) who is their vapor expert. Paul said that the RBC calculations were based on construction worker risk. I asked him if he could provide information on the utilities so I could rule out risk to the residences. He said that they can assume a lot about the utilities. I suggested he call the city and he thought that there was some information collected during their work that could be helpful. Paul also expressed his frustration at being between project managers for so long when they had thought they were at the finish line for the project. Paul also said that the passive gas sampling is what helped them to find the orphan tanks, lead to the removal after which they saw their “numbers” come down. He will be in touch today via email with the reports that include the RBC calculations.
